

AnOther

Spring Has Sprung: Brilliant Things To Do in March

From exciting exhibition openings to the best new film releases, here's our round-up of excellent ways to while away March

March 01, 2022 | Daisy Woodward

Gideon Appah, Remember Our Stars, 2020 Photography by Adam Reich

Gideon Appah: Forgotten, Nudes, Landscapes at the Institute for Contemporary Art, Virginia:
February 19 – June 19, 2022

Ascendent Ghanaian artist Gideon Appah is currently enjoying his first institutional solo show at The ICA at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. A plethora of new paintings, drawings and media ephemera make up the display, which aims to “chronicle the cycle of Ghana’s cultural memory – from heyday to bygone”. Appah has drawn on archive newspaper clippings, posters and films for the purpose, resulting in a series of dreamy, gesturally rendered tableaux that consider “the rise and fall of Ghana’s cinema and leisure culture”.