8. “Kiki Kogelnik: Women” at Mitchell-Innes and Nash, New York

Mitchell-Innes and Nash’s second solo presentation of Kiki Kogelnik comes on the heels of the artist’s posthumous inclusion in the current Venice Biennale. It features 10 of her graphic, boldly colorful paintings and 21 works on paper, dating from 1962 to 1985. Kogelnik’s depictions of women seemingly in search of personal determination were inspired by her own struggles as a woman artist, such as when she and her fiancé, artist Arnulf Rainer, moved in together and she was relegated to the attic, while he got a whole floor as a studio.
