

ARTSY

The 20 Shows You Need to See during Armory Week

ARTSY EDITORIAL
BY CASEY LESSER AND DEMIE KIM
FEB 25TH, 2017 2:44 AM

Armory Week may emphasize art fairs and events, but it's also an opportune time to take in the best of New York's gallery and museum exhibitions. From an in-depth look at Georgia O'Keeffe's finely crafted persona at the Brooklyn Museum to fresh figurative paintings by Sascha Braunig at Foxy Production to a new suite of Sterling Ruby ceramics at Gagosian, these 20 shows are not to be missed.

“Monica Bonvicini: RE pleasure RUN” at Mitchell-Innes & Nash
FEB 23–APRIL 1 • 534 WEST 26TH STREET

Monica Bonvicini, installation view of “RE pleasure RUN” at Mitchell-Innes & Nash, NY, 2017. Photo: Adam Reich. © Monica Bonvicini; Courtesy of the artist and Mitchell-Innes & Nash, NY

Bonvicini addresses power dynamics, effective communication, and even the structure of the gallery itself in this new show. Central to the exhibition is Structural Psychodramas #2 (2017), a large-scale installation of temporary walls that questions the architecture of art institutions. Neon text works, one of which reads “NO MORE MASTURBATION,” offer a cheeky commentary on the role of desire in the present moment.